Greg Thomas

Greg Thomas comes to Dyer Law after over 33 years of practicing law. While the overwhelming majority of his professional career has been spent involved in representing parties in cases involving personal injury, this is the first time he has been able to focus all of his efforts on representing the victims of other people's negligence or people injured in work place accidents.

As Greg stated, "It's nice that I don't have to wear two hats anymore; my heart has always been with the individuals who need help presenting their claims."

Greg handles primarily claims resulting from automobile accidents or other personal injury claims. He also handles Workers' Compensation claims for individuals injured on the job. In addition, he has an extensive background in cases involving claims for improper medical care or medical malpractice.

Greg is a lifelong Omaha resident who attended the University of Nebraska. He has been married for over 26 years and has two sons in college. He is anxious to help the clients of Dyer Law get the compensation they deserve.

Jennifer Turco Meyer

Jennifer Turco Meyer joins Dyer Law with 8 years of experience representing plaintiffs in employment discrimination, personal injury and workers' compensation claims.

Specifically, Jennifer's focus is helping her clients obtain the compensation they deserve in state and Federal courts when traditional negotiation efforts have failed and a lawsuit must be filed. "It is an honor that my clients chose me to stand up and fight for them at trial. It is a great responsibility that I take very seriously."

Jennifer was born and raised in Omaha, graduating from Millard South High School back when they were still called the "Indians." Jennifer attended University of Nebraska-Lincoln for her undergraduate education, and returned home to attend law school at Creighton University School of Law with a concentration in Litigation and Dispute Resolution.

Jennifer and her husband of five years, Alex, spend most of their free time chasing after their two young boys and the family dogs. Jennifer enjoys playing recreational volleyball, cooking, baking and just about any activity involving the outdoors and her family.
